THIRD ANNUAL REPORT OF THE STATE OBSERVATORY OF VIOLENCE ON WOMEN

EXECUTIVE REPORT

The Third Annual Report of the State Observatory of Violence on Women was discussed and approved at meetings held on June 9 and July 13, 2010, to comply with the provisions of Section 30 of the Organic Act No. 1/04, of December 28, 2004, on Comprehensive Protection Measures against Gender Violence.

The Report comprises a Statistical Yearbook on Gender Violence prepared by the Subdirectorate-General for Gender Violence Knowledge Management and Prevention (Office of the Government Delegate for Gender Violence), and a second chapter relating to the Report of the Research Task Force on the alleged Parental Alienation Syndrome.

The Task Force was formed under a resolution approved at a full meeting of the State Observatory of Violence on Women held on May 12, 2009, and was coordinated by Ms. Ana Maria Perez del Campo, holder of a degree in Family Law and a member of the Observatory as Chairwoman of the Federation of Associations of Separated and Divorced Women. Other members of the Task Force were:

- Mr. Antonio Escudero, psychiatrist
- Ms. Dolores Gonzalez, lawyer
- Ms. Rosa Mendez, equality officer, B.A. in Hebrew philology
- Ms. Covadonga Naredo, psychologist
- Ms. Eva Pleguezuelos, lawyer
- Ms. Sonia Vaccaro, psychologist

With reference to the Statistical Yearbook on Gender Violence we must note that the report of the National and Regional Governments on "Evaluation of the application of the Organic Act No. 1/04, of December 28, 2004 after this had been in force for three years" said in 2008:

"The improvement of administrative records and, consequently, of the possibility of generating statistics based on such records, is a task currently being undertaken both in Spain and in other countries, which is expected to bear fruit in the short and medium term (...)

" (...) even though, considering the extent of this social problem, there is only limited information available from administrative records, this does help to understand the degree to which legal, police and social support mechanisms are being used by the victims of gender violence.

Although the Organic Act had been in force for only a short time, in its Second Annual Report¹, approved on May 12, 2009, the State Observatory of Violence on Women provided a significant and comprehensive array of statistical figures broken down into 10 sections, drawn up by the Office of the Government Delegate for Gender Violence using the main data sources available, many of them carried at the Observatory. In this Third Report we have sought to consolidate and purify the same statistical information to be able to analyse the trends in gender violence and learn more about the nature of the problem. Besides, new cross tabulations of variables have been performed and new information has been added that sheds more light on gender violence, so we can implement preventive mechanisms with a view to finally eradicate the problem.

The Statistical Yearbook on Gender Violence is broken down into 14 sections with a total of 186 tables, 206 charts and 20 maps. The following is a summary of part of the basic information the Yearbook contains for the periods and from the sources specified in each case.

1. Gender Violence-Related Deaths January 1, 2003 - December 31, 2009. Office of the Government Delegate for Gender Violence (Ministry of Equality).

In 2009, 55 women were killed in gender violence-related crimes, the lowest annual figure for the 2003-2009 period.

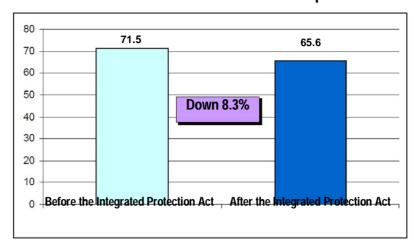

In all, 471 women were killed by their partners or former partners between January 1, 2003 and December 31, 2009. The trend in the annual figures during the period is shown in the chart below:

The persistence of these crimes and the fluctuations seen in the figures during the period show gender violence in its most brutal form. Such violence is experienced throughout Spain, does not show a systematic pattern, and each murder substantially alters the figures and their territorial distribution.

Even though the average number of gender violence-related deaths can be seen to have fallen off slightly (see chart below) between the years before and after the Comprehensive Protection Act was unanimously approved by all political groups in the Spanish Parliament, we feel the number of deaths is not an appropriate indicator to assess the social impact and effectiveness of the Act because it is not possible to determine the number of women whose lives have been saved thanks to the means made available to them under the Act.

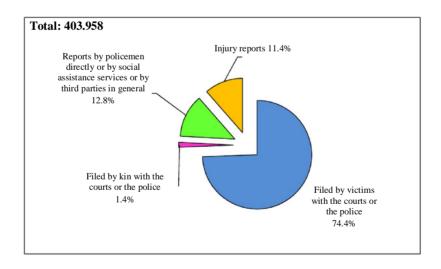

Annual average number of gender violence-related deaths in the 2003-2009 period

2. Gender Violence-Related Complaints January 1, 2007 - December 31, 2009. General Council of the Judiciary.

In 2009, a total of 135,540 gender violence-related complaints were filed with Spanish courts. The monthly average was 11,295, and the daily average was 371. These figures were down 4.6% from 2008. As the figures available only cover the past three years, it seems too soon to draw any conclusions.

A total of 403,958 complaints were filed between January 1, 2007 and December 31, 2009. The breakdown by type of complainant is shown in the chart below. According to these figures three out of four complaints were filed by the victims of gender violence themselves.

3. Gender Violence-Related Court Cases June 29, 2005 - December 31, 2009. Central Register for the Protection of Victims of Domestic Violence (Spanish Ministry of Justice).

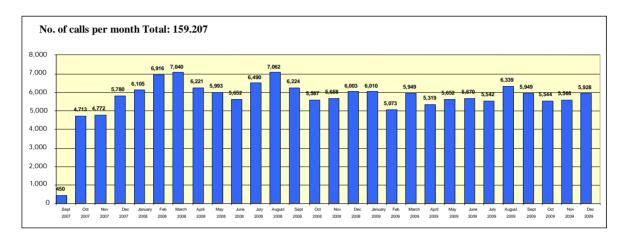

The Ministry of Justice is currently adjusting its Information System to meet the requirements of Royal Decree 95/2009. In that respect, the information made available by the Justice Ministry for preparing the Yearbook covers only some of the demographic and social characteristics of the parties involved. Of the total number of victims in cases of gender violence brought before the courts during the period in question, 69.4% were Spanish nationals and 30.6% were aliens.

4. 016 Helpline for Legal Advice and Information on Gender Violence September 3, 2007 - December 31, 2009. Office of the Government Delegate for Gender Violence (Ministry of Equality).

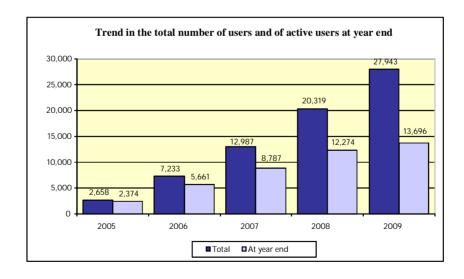

During 2009, 68,541 gender violence-related calls were received over the 016 Helpline. The number of calls was down 8.6% from 74,951 received in 2008.

The number of gender violence-related calls received between September 3, 2007 and December 31, 2009 was 159,207.

5. Users of the Mobile Support Service for Victims of Gender Violence December 2005 - December 31, 2009. Institute of Social Services and the Elderly (Ministry of Health and Social Policy) and the Spanish Federation of Municipalities and Provinces.

At December 31, 2009, 13,696 women victims of gender violence were using the mobile support service, 11.6% more than the 12,274 who used the service at the end of 2008.

6. Labor contracts benefitting from rebates in Social Security dues for women who are victims of gender violence (January 1, 2003 - December 31, 2009) and for hiring replacements of victims of gender violence (January 1, 2003 - December 31, 2009). Spanish Public Employment Service (Ministry of Labour and Immigration)

Between January 1, 2003 and December 31, 2009, a total of 2,369 women victims of gender violence were hired under labour contracts benefitting from rebates in Social Security dues. Of these, 411 contracts made in 2009.

A total of 364 labour contracts fully exempt from Social Security contributions were made with persons hired as replacements for women victims of gender violence in the January 1, 2005 - December 31, 2009 period. Of these, 96 were hired in 2009.

7. Active Insertion Benefit (AIB) Paid to Women Victims of Gender Violence January 1, 2006 - December 31, 2009. Spanish Public Employment Service (Ministry of Labour and Immigration).

The number of women receiving the AIB continued to grow in 2009, bringing the total to 22,010, as did the number of working women who received financial aid for moving to a new home, who numbered 6,011 in the 2005-2009 period.

Working Women Victims of Gender Violence Who Are Paid the AIB

Year	Different women	Annual change	Cumulative change	Monthly mean
2006	10,924	-	-	5,673
2007	13,291	21.7	21.7	7,602
2008	16,883	27.0	54.5	9,445
2009	22,010	30.4	101.5	13,461

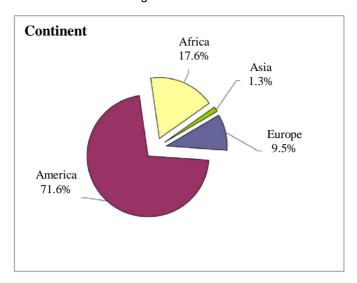

8. Beneficiaries of Financial Aid Foreseen in Section 27 of the Comprehensive Protection Act September 3, 2007 - December 31, 2009. Office of the Government Delegate for Gender Violence (Ministry of Equality).

As of December 31, 2009, according to the information available to the Office of the Government Delegate for Gender Violence, women victims of gender violence had been granted financial aid in 717 cases under the provisions of Section 27 of the Comprehensive Protection Act. Of these, 210 were granted such aid in 2009.

9. Temporary residence permits granted in exceptional circumstances for humanitarian reasons to alien women who were victims of domestic violence-related crimes Information recorded since 2005, up to December 31, 2009. Ministry of the Presidency.

Since 2005, through the end of 2009, 1,467 residence permits were granted. Of these 613 were granted in 2009.

The chart below shows the continents of origin of women victims of violence:

10. Inmates serving time in prison for gender violence-related crimes. December 31, 2009. Directorate General for Prisons (Ministry of Home Affairs)

At the end of 2009, the number of prison inmates serving time for gender violence-related crimes was 4,734², of whom 49.0% or 2,320 were held only for such crimes, according to the Prison Information System. Of the inmates held for gender violence-related crimes 77.0% were Spanish nationals and 23.0% were aliens.

11. Use of remote tracking devices to enforce removal orders relating to gender violence July 24 - December 31, 2009 period. Office of the Government Delegate for Gender Violence (Ministry of Equality).

Between July 24, 2009, when a monitoring system using remote tracking devices went into operation to ensure compliance with removal orders in cases of gender violence, until December 31, 2009, a total of 167 coupled electronic devices were fitted on individuals. Of these, 10 had been taken off by the end of the year, so the number of coupled devices in operation was 157 at the end of 2009.

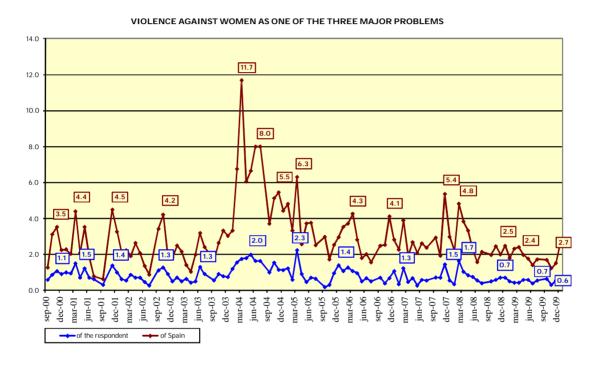

12. Helpline and online information as well as guidance on equality policies and men - Line 900 21 00 21. December 4-31, 2009 period. Office of the Government Delegate for Gender Violence (Ministry of Equality.

Since the helpline was started on December 4, 2009, until the 31st of that month, there were 605 calls, of which 84.3% by men (510) and 15.7% by women (95).

13. Social perception of violence against women in Spain. September 2000 - December 2009. Sociological Research Centre.

Month after month, part of the surveyed population considers that violence against women is one of the three main problems in Spain and also one of the three main problems of the individual respondents. The fluctuations seen in survey results, with a peak period of concern between 2004 and 2005, while the Comprehensive Protection Act was being drafted, was approved and became effective, probably reflected a greater emphasis placed by the media on the situation of women victims of gender violence during those months, when the media especially stressed this specific problem as well as the need to implement specific measures to eradicate it The figures for 2009 show that the picture remains unchanged.

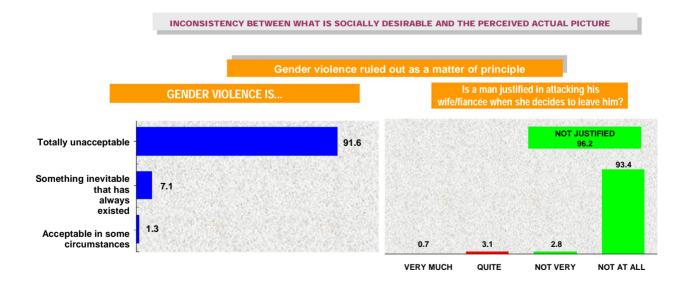

The problem of violence against women is perceived differently by men and women; the latter are more acutely aware of it. This can be inferred from the fact that, out of 253,357 persons interviewed during the period in question, 130,158 have been women and 123,199 men; i.e., 51.4% of the total number of respondents have been women and 48.6% men.

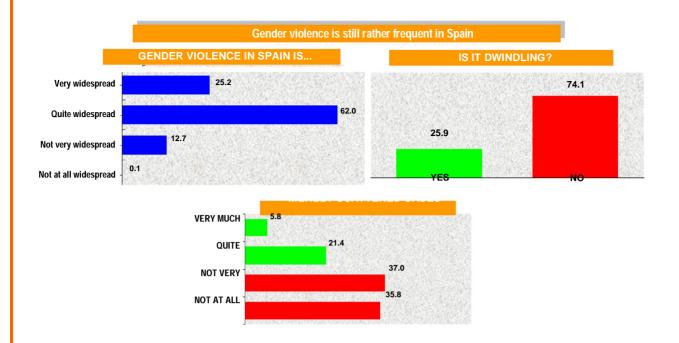

14. Opinion Poll on Gender Violence. June 2009. Office of the Government Delegate for Gender Violence (Ministry of Equality).

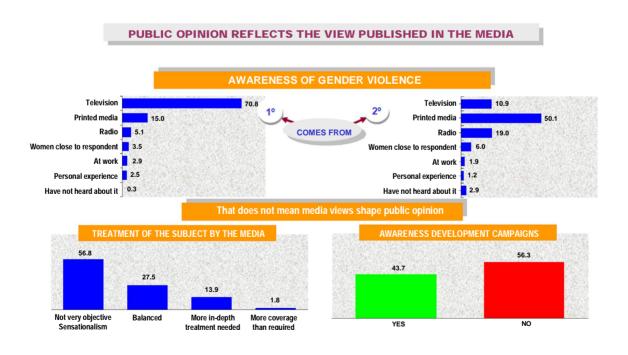

The Office of the Government Delegate took an online opinion poll on gender violence in June 2009 and analysed the results with the cooperation of the sociologist Fernando González Hermosilla. Some of the main results have been as follows:

1. Even though rejection of gender violence has become the rule, as something unacceptable as a matter of principle (91.6%), the majority of respondents believe it is not merely a question of a few scattered cases: rather, it is quite a widespread problem in Spain (87.0%) that does not seem to be about to dwindle for the time being.

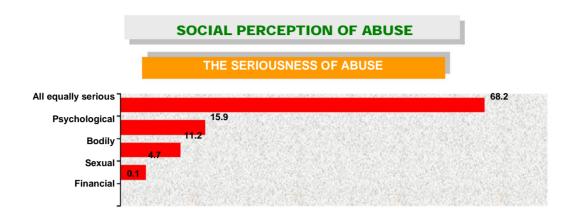

- 2. Despite the perception of the majority, that it is quite a widespread problem, only a small minority (10%) say they are aware of the problem from what they experience in day-to-day life. That suggests gender violence continues to be covered up as a private matter in day-to-day life.
- 3. Even though public opinion reflects mainly the views on gender violence published in the media, which provide most (90%) of the information on the subject, that does not mean the approach of the media determines the social perception of the problem.

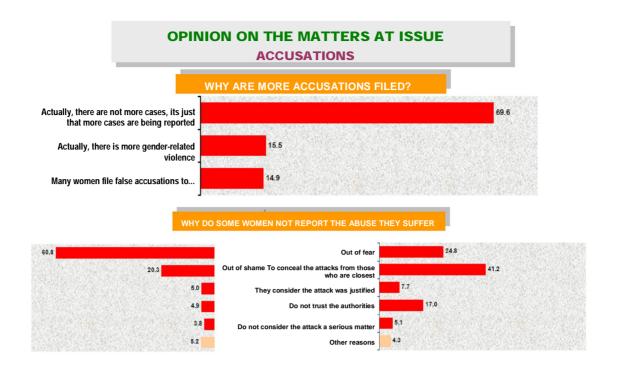

4. Even though the use of physical force by the attacker is the dominant symbol of gender violence in the eyes of the public, the majority of respondents (68%) consider any type of physical, psychological or sexual abuse of women to be equally serious.

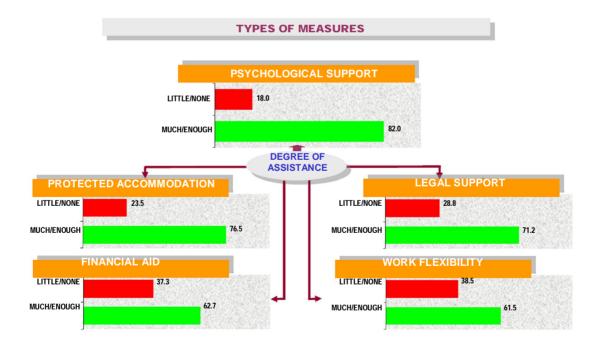

5. Although a sizeable minority (33%) believe the problem of gender violence now afflicts both sexes, the majority (65%) continue to see it as something that concerns women in particular. This view is gaining ground among women.

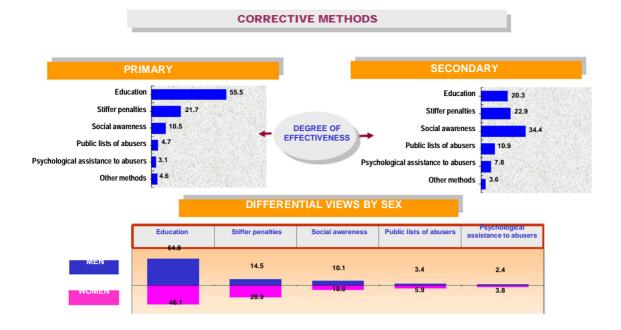

6. A minority view that cannot be ignored (11% among women and 18% among men) is that many women unfairly take advantage of the law designed to protect them, by filing false accusations. A substantial majority (70%), however, believe the increase in the number of complaints filed reflects the fact that more women are prepared to report the abuse they suffer. And there is a substantial majority of respondents who believe that many women do not report abuse out of fear and shame, which lead them to conceal the attacks from all except those to whom they are closest.

7. Even though emergency measures to pull women out of abuse situations (psychological and legal support as well as protected accommodation) are given priority over measures to assure the sustainability of such solutions (financial aid and work flexibility), the majority of respondents agree there is a need to provide integral support to the victims.

8. Twice as many women than men stress the need for stiffer penalties, yet the majority of them agree with men that education and developing social awareness are the most effective ways of fighting gender violence.

- 9. Even though a sizeable majority (63.5%) believe the victims of gender violence are not to blame for the abuse they suffer, nearly half the men and 28% of women believe they are because they continue to live with their attackers.
- 10. In response to an open question on the reasons for gender violence a significant number of respondents point towards male chauvinism, culture, and inequality. However, when it comes to describing the profile of attackers a majority point to conditioning factors of a subjective / biographical type or to intervening factors.
- 11. In general, the majority of men and women are substantially in agreement in the way they respond to most of the questions. An overall review of the responses, however, clearly shows that men take more lenient views.

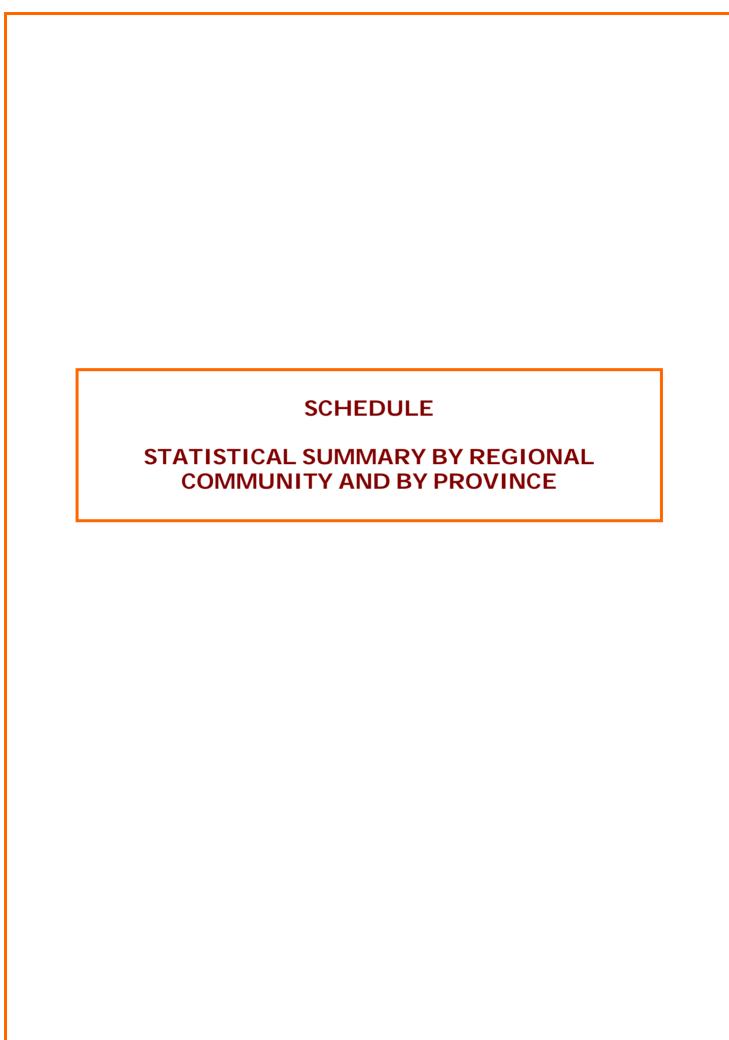

A comparatively small number of respondents take the view that gender violence is very or quite widespread in Spain, or consider preventive measures to be important in the fight against gender violence, or do not agree that women are to blame for continuing to live with their attacker.

There are many more who think that there are merely scattered cases of gender violence and that the number of such cases is dwindling, or that men are as concerned as women with the problem, or who believe that the rehabilitation of attackers is possible.

In nearly every section of the Yearbook the relevant statistical exploitation is based on micro facts, without using information identifying the individuals, which makes for a greater degree of disaggregation than that generally seen in gender violence statistics so far. Where basic information is available, the Annual Report of the Observatory provides social and demographic information on the victims and the perpetrators, giving a breakdown by age bracket, nationality, etc.

This Report contains actual abuse figures and quantitative evidence of the use of institutional means available for protecting the victims.

In every section of the statistical chapter a breakdown is given by regional communities, and there is a Schedule to this Report, attached below, with summary statistical information on gender violence in each regional community.

It is considered essential for the statistical information currently available to be maintained and further improved with supplementary information drawn from other sources, in particular with consistent overall figures on the comprehensive social assistance means used that are contributing towards the recovery of gender violence victims.

It is likewise considered necessary to gain more in-depth knowledge to fight this serious social problem through both quantitative and qualitative research and surveys.
